1. CARING FARMS - empowering aging villagers

The CARING FARMS session aims to involve the participants in discussing the quality of life of aging villagers. A caring farm is a form of farming that combines agricultural activity with caring for people in need of support. It is a particular type of social farming, an essential element of which is farm resources to carry out therapeutic, caring and integration activities. The main criteria for its evaluation are access to care, services and social contacts. I put forward the thesis that caring farms are the right tool for solving the loneliness of ageing villagers and the lack of access to social services in rural areas. They are also an important factor in increasing seniors' physical and intellectual health, thus delaying their placement in nursing homes. I invite you for a short walk to the Regional Center for Social Policy (15 min), which runs the only project to create caring farms in Poland. While there, we will visit one of these farms remotely and discuss the empowerment of ageing villagers. I am curious about your experiences and opinions. The maximum number of participants is 10 people.

2. CULTURAL QUARTERS - opportunity for inhabitants

The aim of the session is, on the one hand, to present the assumptions of the cultural districts as a new version of urban policy implemented in many cities of the world. On the other hand, it will be important to show the potential of Zielona Góra as a city rich in pre-war wine monuments. The impulse for such a presentation is the fact that the development (revitalisation) of suburban vineyards, which has been taking place since the beginning of this century, has not been accompanied by a parallel process of reconstruction of vineyard monuments: houses of vineyard owners, remains of the industrial infrastructure connected with wine production and urban wine cellars, the number of which reaches several dozen. Meanwhile, these objects may create a new image of the city and strengthen the opportunity to enhance local cultural tourism. An example of beneficial initiatives will be a visit to one of the places in the city centre, where it is soon planned to use it for catering and cultural activities.

3. MOBILE EVALUATION of the effects of revitalisation

Erasmus+

The aim of the MOBILE EVALUATION session is to show how the use of new technologies changes the perception of physical objects in the revitalised urban space. We will evaluate (1) the usefulness of the objects on the basis of their photos in an online survey, then (2) you will be able to see the same objects in the revitalised space and (3) re-evaluate them. We will try to determine whether our ideas based on photos of objects are confirmed in contact with the same objects located in a real, revitalised space. We argue that 1) the use of only virtual materials in the process of space revitalisation, in isolation from the broader context, can significantly change our perspective and assessment of the attractiveness or usefulness of objects; 2) the assessment of the usefulness of objects on the basis of their visual projections, without knowing the context of their future use, is an inappropriate way of making decisions about revitalisation. Maximum number of participants: 10 people.

4. WINE-DIPPED CITY – Zielona Góra

The aim of the walk is to explore the Bacchic and wine-related heritage of Zielona Góra in its visual aspects in public space. We will walk around the streets of the old city district to discover all kinds of wine-related places, sculptures, and embellishments, old and new. This revitalised heritage and re-invented tradition has become an important part of local identity, and has been perpetuated by the actions of local authorities and inhabitants alike.

The visual presence of the abovementioned heritage in public spaces took many different forms: institutional, architectural, landscape-related, sculptural, ornamental, graffiti, and symbolic. Along our route, we will try to cover it all.

5. U-EMPOWER – empowering Ukrainian refugees

The aim of the U-EMPOWER session is to involve participants in the process of searching for the best practices of solidarity with refugees. The organisers will present arguments for the following theses: 1. The main criterion for assessing the functionality of solidarity practices should be the relationship between the host and guest community; 2. Seen from this perspective, practices that lead to refugee empowerment should be considered beneficial. 3. The activity of the Neighbourhood House in Zielona Góra is a good example of the postulated practices. It is a centre that provides support to refugees in an innovative way, thanks to the cooperation of the Catholic parish, civic organisations, volunteers, artists and social researchers. We invite you for a short walk to the Neighbourhood House (10 minutes), where we will present the U-EMPOWER project and propose a discussion on the empowerment of refugees. We are curious about your experiences and opinions. The maximum number of participants: 15 people.

Erasmus+

elements of wine and bacchic culture located in its space. The aim of the walk will be the Wine Hill, where we will present various cultural sources from which modern Zielona Góra winemaking draws.
